In accordance with your request in references, we received the following evaluation of the information forwarded as attachments to references:

"The two (2) reports attached to the above dispatches have been evaluated. Both reports cover topics which are in general unclassified and on which much overt information is available.

"No reason can be determined to classify the reports as TOP SECRET and CONFIDENTIAL. It is not believed that reports such as these two (2) would be furnished to a double agent. In the case of the report on US atomic plans, for instance, it is more likely that a double agent would be given reports on the more militarily applicable reactor forms such as plutonium production or propulsion reactors.

"In answer to the three specific questions requested by Munich, (1) EGMA 54089 appears completely accurate, while EGMA 54020 is only partly so, (2) both are compilations of overt literature, and (3) there is some intelligence value in the acquisition of such completely overt information but no reason to classify it so highly."
